I believe that the Proposed Final Judgement in the Microsoft case is flawed, principally because it allows continued "bolting" of non-integral software to the Windows operating system, in such a way as to minimize the opportunity for other (non-Microsoft) competing products in the market space for these types of non-integral software. Competitiveness and the American economy are not served by allowing Microsoft, in spite of the Judges' ruling that they had acted unlawfully, to continue these practices.

Respectfully,
